Rudolf Diesel is the inventor of the diesel engine, and is an Austrian engineer who founded the company known today as: Diesel AG. Diesel AG was founded in 1895 as Industriebau-Gesellschaft in Linz, and is now headquartered in Hanau. When Diesel started his career he was in the company of his sister Gerth, and he was 23 years younger than her. At that time Gerth was an apprentice chemist at a coal gas factory (Industriebau) where she was employed to estimate the production of acids and sulphuric acid.
