Twitter is one of the best social media platforms to generate new leads. It's best to have a Twitter account with a lot of followers in order to increase your leads conversion. In this video, Andrew Blum explains what a Twitter funnel is and how you can use the tool for your marketing strategies. This strategy consists of connecting your Twitter account to different tools and add-ons to develop a list of email for subscribers and then turning them into real leads. Things you will learn in this video: 1. What is a Twitter funnel? 2. How to implement a Twitter funnel? 3. How to generate real leads from Twitter? Andrea J 0:06 To be successful, you need a high quality and targeted audience. With social media platforms such as Twitter, Facebook and Instagram, you can target your audience, and even get a lot of leads. If you manage a business, there are two ways to generate leads from your brand: 1. The Traditional Way: Basically, you have a list of people who have subscribed to a content that you make. Usually, the people who like your content are more interested in your products or services. The main idea is: If they like DealPly Description: Use DealPly to locate the best deals on the Internet. It's a handy and reliable browser extension. DealPly works with Internet Explorer, Firefox and Chrome browsers. You can view deals from: Amazon eBay Google Walmart Woot Newegg Since it was powered by Google it was pretty difficult to add Google Contextual Remarketing. However, today I found an answer to the problem. All that's left to do is to create a new list and create a Google Tag Manager variable for that list. The code is available on my Github profile. Update: I've published a tutorial on how to build a Google Remarketing list for better conversion. 11 years ago Rajith Mathews on August 20, 2019: Thanks for the post.
