Gameplay □ Stroll - - A quirky, yet noir-ish turn-based game in which you push a cart along the dirt roads, gathering materials from the local NPCs as you go. - A game about walking, gathering materials, and interacting with other characters - Initially in a simple-looking town, but later in a much larger world full of adventure - A little bit like a farming game in which you can gather items, but also encounters that involve combat and politics - You get quests from NPC's to help them and gain money in the form of food to sell - It feels more like a card-based game, where you have a hand of card that contains character cards and different equipment cards, and can use these to do things that you can see in a turn-based card game. You can buy upgrades for your equipment and level up your character \- The equipment can be acquired by talking with the NPC's, selling items, or using them in battle \- The game has an interesting backstory of "The Kingdom of Elden" Gameplay and art are relatively well done, very clean, and the music is great Controls: Look and move: Click on the left and right on the screen to move in a diagonal fashion Click on the up and down to move in the same direction as you press the buttons Press a button to attack and perform various actions, from using items, buying items, equipping items, talking to NPC's, and other actions An action requires you to select the card, and the action will be triggered after the card is chosen The timing of the actions varies, depending on if you are in battle or just walking around talking to the NPC's, but it is done in a very clean and intuitive fashion World: - The world is full of various places where you can go explore - There are NPC's in many towns, and in order to talk to them you have to go there - There are also beehive towns in the world - The game features a dark atmosphere of noir and a sense of nostalgia, possibly similar to Persona 5 System Information: - You can acquire talents by talking to NPC's and exploring the world bff6bb2d33

Welcome to Tarnished's Discussion for Tarnished Realm GBA Post subject: Re: ELDEN RING SPIRITUAL ACTION RPG FREEMODE GBA Posted: Tue Jul 15, 2011 1:45 am Joined: Thu May 26, 2011 12:17 pmPosts: 29 so basically i have 7 days only on the game.. so far so good! im only half way through the game but i think its actually turning out to be a pretty good game.. the hero classes and dual class system are kinda interesting as we start with some simple jobs but as we progress our jobs change and our class changes..the two hero classes are : the Cleric and the Warrior.. you start with mostly melee classes (Thief, Wizard) but at the end you can change your job to be a healer.. new weapons are pretty cool like the bow and the blunt sword / halberd combination and there are even bows that shoot fire and ice shards.. there are a lot of crafts and you can upgrade your armor and weapons and you have 2 or 3 alternate forms to progress your character.. Gameplay is very simple just move the character and attack.. the combat has RPG elements with stars.. go into your inventory and you have 5 weapons and 4 armor.. you can buy a sword and then craft it from a weapon and a sword so you can have 2 different weapons all the time.. if you run out of money to buy stuff you can level up or do a crafting thing called blacksmithing.. you can also get a job to level up which is very cool.. you can get extra money for quests that you do and you can also get 1 food / 1 money per day from the merchants.. its pretty cool that you can chose to be thief or cleric or warrior or a new mysterious class that evolves your character but each class has a different spell or weapon skill so you cant become like a Tanky Destroyer but you can have a healer class or a damage dealing class..
