Juniper's Knot is a short (~30 min) kinetic novel about the meeting of a demon and a boy. A kinetic novel is a game that uses text, sound, and illustrations to tell a story. There is no gameplay, just click to progress!

Bloodsport: The Game Bloodsport: The Game is a one-player game that takes place from 1955-2009. The game is a violent sport that occurs between two opponents who enter a specially designed arena and attempt to kill each other with their bare fists. The creator of the game, Brian "Redneck" Bendis, was inspired to create this game while reading Silent Hill 2. There are more than 13 weapons and over 30 rules that can be used in this game, including weapons such as a chainsaw, a flamethrower, a mortar, and a machine gun, as well as rules such as a ban on using a weapon on your own teammate, a rule banning the use of a weapon during food breaks, and rules that regulate how much ammunition you can use during a round. There are different arenas for this game, including a desert arena, a medieval arena, a rodeo arena, a city arena, and a ship arena. There are six different levels of competition in each arena. Other things you might like by Brian Bendis: You can find his website here, where you can watch his movies and purchase his books, and his twitter here, where you can ask him questions or just talk with him. “The operation of the Hamburg S-Bahn requires the use of modern equipment, as well as vehicles that are up-to-date with respect to their technical and constructional performance. The Class 474, known as the “Bahren” in German, is a standard-gauge multiple unit that has the smoothness and safety of modern German traffic.” DB BR 474.3: The two-car set entered service in 1996 and is the third generation of multiple units used in Hamburg’s S-Bahn services. The first set comprised 45 units, nine of which being the.3 variant with a pantograph. There were 112 total, of which 24 were the.3 variant. The multiple unit was designed to the requirements of the city’s traffic, so it has excellent features such as a smooth ride for the passengers, a clear operation and the ability to cope with the tight curves of the line. The Class 474 units operate in accordance with the design standards of Germany’s DLR and can thus run on both third-rail electrification and overhead electrification on the 15kV AC lines. By selecting the pantograph option you can run on overhead lines anywhere in Germany. This new generation of multiple units is equipped with drive motors of 1000 hp each, enabling the trains to run at top speed of 120 km/h. TECHNICAL DETAILS

The original two-car set entered service in 1996 and has a total length of 16.62 metres with a width of 2.29 metres. Both carriages feature a steel underframe and floor with hybrid doors; the front carriage is longer by 1.20 metres. For the rear carriage, the platform extension is carried out by a longer pair of trucks. With diesel engines developing over 300 HP, each unit has a maximum permissible load of 23 t and provides over 1,000 passengers with seating capacity for 224, and a net interior volume of 2,710 liters. Both carriages feature a choice of second class seating and open gangways. The club car is equipped with adjustable tables for meetings, and the buffet car has soft seats, reading lights and a TV. TRANSPORT VOLUME Carrying up to 224 passengers, the 474.3 has a theoretical load of 454 tonnes. The carriages are equipped with power supply equipment for the interior lighting and entertainment and have external air conditioning. EDITION

Cortical Unity Part one Author's note: The second half of the story of the crew of spaceship Pilgrim is going to be released in the following installments. Once all is said and done, the final chapter of this story will be quite an emotional one. ————— The aftermath of the Union Disaster and its consequences had left the crew of the spaceship Pilgrim in shambles. The only person who managed to survive the impact was the Captain himself. As soon as he regained consciousness from the concussion, he immediately started to panic, and tried to make contact with the rest of his crew by firing the drive from its charging battery. However, the system was too badly damaged, and it was only through sheer luck that he was able to use the emergency transmit function to send a distress signal. Interestingly, the Captain kept almost no information about what happened to his crew. The only thing he was sure of was the fact that he and his crew had in fact returned to the normal space. There was no trace of the giant monster ever seen at the beginning of the story, as well as no wreckage. But the ship's safe return was perhaps too good to be true. During the last year, there had occurred many unexpected events that completely changed the structure of the galaxy. In the first place, a long-going and persistent Union propaganda, which was intended to push the universe back into a cold war forever, finally came to an end a year ago. It was indeed true that the Union and Blackstar both started to develop new space-capable weapons systems that were much more powerful than that of the so-called Covenant. The former claimed that it would be the last use for the weapons, in order to avoid possible diseases that may beset the human bodies of an extended use of the technology, while the latter wanted to use the weaponry so that they would never have to suffer the cold war again. All this caused an intense social tensions between the two factions. The day of the massacre was extremely difficult for both the Union and Blackstar in particular, because it clearly revealed the ill intention of both parties. Hence, there was a large-scale peace conference that was called last year. As a result of the Peace Conference, a short, six-day truce was declared. Then five days after that, two mysterious pirates had suddenly appeared in the middle of the space, offering the peace the Union claimed in return for Kombat Pack 2 is a free update for Kombat Pack 1. Since the release of Kombat Pack 1, we have been busy working on a follow up pack titled Kombat Pack 2. The pack adds four new character skins to the roster. We have also added two new music tracks to the pack. Just for fun, we have randomly generated a skin for each new character and added them to a special skin pack. The pack should be usable in both the arcade and home versions. In addition, we have also been revamping the menu screens. The new UI screen should be closer to what fans are used to. Hopefully this will address issues with the game but time will tell. The pack also adds two new music tracks to the game. The music is taken from the 1999 cult film "The Hills Have Eyes Part 2". The music is performed by the band "Dimension of Hate". Both of the tracks are far more chilling than the original music. New skins: Mileena - The Nemesis. A mysterious assassin who spends her time stalking her victim. She can remove her mask to reveal the true face of fury and hatred. Ermac - The Pharaoh. The ruler of ancient Egypt, the king of the underworld. Reptile - The Predator. A veteran beast of the jungle whose fury knows no bounds. All new GUI screens: New menu screens for each of the new skins: That's it for now. The pack is completely free and should be available in June. This pack is free. For Kombat Pack owners, this update should come as a free update for those who have previously purchased the original Kombat Pack. All Kombat Pack owners who already have the original Kombat Pack should be able to activate it for free. If this is not the case, please send us an email at support@e-garage.com and we will happily issue you a free activation. WHAT'S NEW Kombat Pack 2 is a free update for
