I use this codes: NSString *newString = [[NSString alloc] initWithString:myString]; [myString release]; myString = newString; I'm totally new to objective C and the value of myChar is 91. Thanks for your help! A: NSString *newString = [[NSString alloc] initWithString:[NSString stringWithFormat:@"%c%@",myChar, myString]]; The present invention relates to circuit assemblies of the type used in the control circuits of railroad switches and similar devices. Although in most instances switches include a more sophisticated control circuit or system, much of the common engineering used in the operation of switches is still in its infancy. For example, switches, and more specifically switches of the type having a selectable pair of sets of flipper arms that can be independently controlled in order to select one of a pair of paths, are still controlled by having one arm of each pair of arms simultaneously activate the switch from a switched position to a deactivated position, and the other arm simultaneously deactivate the switch from the deactivated position to the switched position. In the case of such a switch, the arms are controlled by a circuit which is part of the mechanical set in the switch. The mechanical set of the switch is first considered in order to understand the basic interaction between the arms and the circuit used to control them. The mechanism of the switch comprises a pair of flipper arms spaced around the rail which, in their switched position, contact and move a switch track to a position where a truck can pass. A pair of manually operated lever arms are controlled from a position to select the pair of flipper arms which, in turn, will move the switch track to the position where the truck can pass. The lever arms are each connected to one of the two pairs of arms forming the flipper arms. These arms are interconnected and a mechanical linkage interconnects them whereby moving the lever arm to a position to select which arm should be moved first causes both
