In fungal organisms diamine oxidases are considered to catalyze the oxidative deamination of amines to keto-semialdehydes, a reaction of great physiological importance. Diamine oxidase from Saccharomyces cerevisiae is characterized by a molecular weight of 250000 and by an absorption spectrum similar to those of flavoproteins. However, it has a significantly higher affinity for pyridoxal 5'-phosphate than do flavoproteins. The catalytic mechanism is discussed in relation to the findings that the substrate binding occurs by a disulfide bridge at the amino terminus and that an amino acid residue of cysteine at position 12 provides a coenzyme-binding site.A case of IgA nephropathy with rituximab therapy. A 64-year-old woman presented with nephrotic syndrome and thrombocytopenia. Renal biopsy revealed diffuse mesangial and endocapillary proliferative lesions, which showed positive staining for IgA. On admission, she was given the third course of rituximab for the treatment of severe lupus nephritis. Her nephrotic range proteinuria and thrombocytopenia improved gradually and she became free of steroid therapy. A further renal biopsy showed significant amelioration of the glomerular lesions. This is, to our knowledge, the first case report of IgA nephropathy associated with rituximab therapy.Q: Back button on the nav bar doesn't work I am using a tutorial to create a typical Navigation Bar. I want that when I go back from a specific screen that I display by clicking on a button, it returns to the previous screen. The problem is that when I push back, my back button disappears, but when I push the back button, the back button is visible again. Here is the code I use : - (void)viewDidLoad { [super viewDidLoad]; NSString *str = @"Welcome"; self.title = str; self.navigationItem.leftBarButtonItem = [[UIBarButtonItem alloc] initWithTitle:@"Return" style:UIBarButtonItemStyleBordered target:self action:@selector(showMenu:); } -(void)showMenu:(id)sender { UIBarButtonItem *back=[[UIBarButtonItem alloc] initWithTitle:@"Back" style:UIBarButtonItemStyleBordered target:self action:@selector(backTest:)];

        self.navigationItem.
