Q: Topological minimum spanning tree in KMeans clustering in R I would like to run k-means in R on a dataset and I want to retain the k-means cluster that has minimum spanning tree among the clusters. A: This is not possible to do with k-means. k-means does not behave like clustering methods such as hierarchical clustering or euclidean k-means. See the below k-means example using the iris dataset. library(FactoMineR) # Specify your cluster centers K Clinical experience with atrial thrombus in patients treated with oral anticoagulation.
